

ABSTRACT

Methods and apparatus to generate addresses in processors are disclosed. An example address generator disclosed herein includes an adder to add a first address component and a second address component to generate an address, a correction indicator to indicate if the address is correct, and a control input to modify an operation of the adder.